

Days 16 to 28 for approval

4 new posts in full further down, including the news posts (September news, named as such) and the designed versions of the filming days. Reused posts were approved on 29 Sep and are only moved. Every morning post goes out as a Reel and a TikTok with a beat; every evening post as a carousel plus a TikTok video.

Day 16 · Tue 13 Oct · Evening	NEW Last month, the CBN asked a question about “pay small small”. News · full post and captions further down · Instagram carousel 19:30 · TikTok 20:30
Day 21 · Sun 18 Oct · Morning	NEW 3 things your competitors missed. News · full post and captions further down · Instagram Reel 07:30 · TikTok 12:30 · LinkedIn 08:00
Day 21 · Sun 18 Oct · Evening	NEW Lagos traffic taught me more about copywriting than any course. Lifestyle · full post and captions further down · Instagram carousel 19:30 · TikTok 20:30
Day 28 · Sun 25 Oct · Morning	NEW 3 things to know before the holiday rush. News · full post and captions further down · Instagram Reel 07:30 · TikTok 12:30

Last month, the CBN asked a question about “pay small small”.

INSTAGRAM AND TIKTOK CAPTION

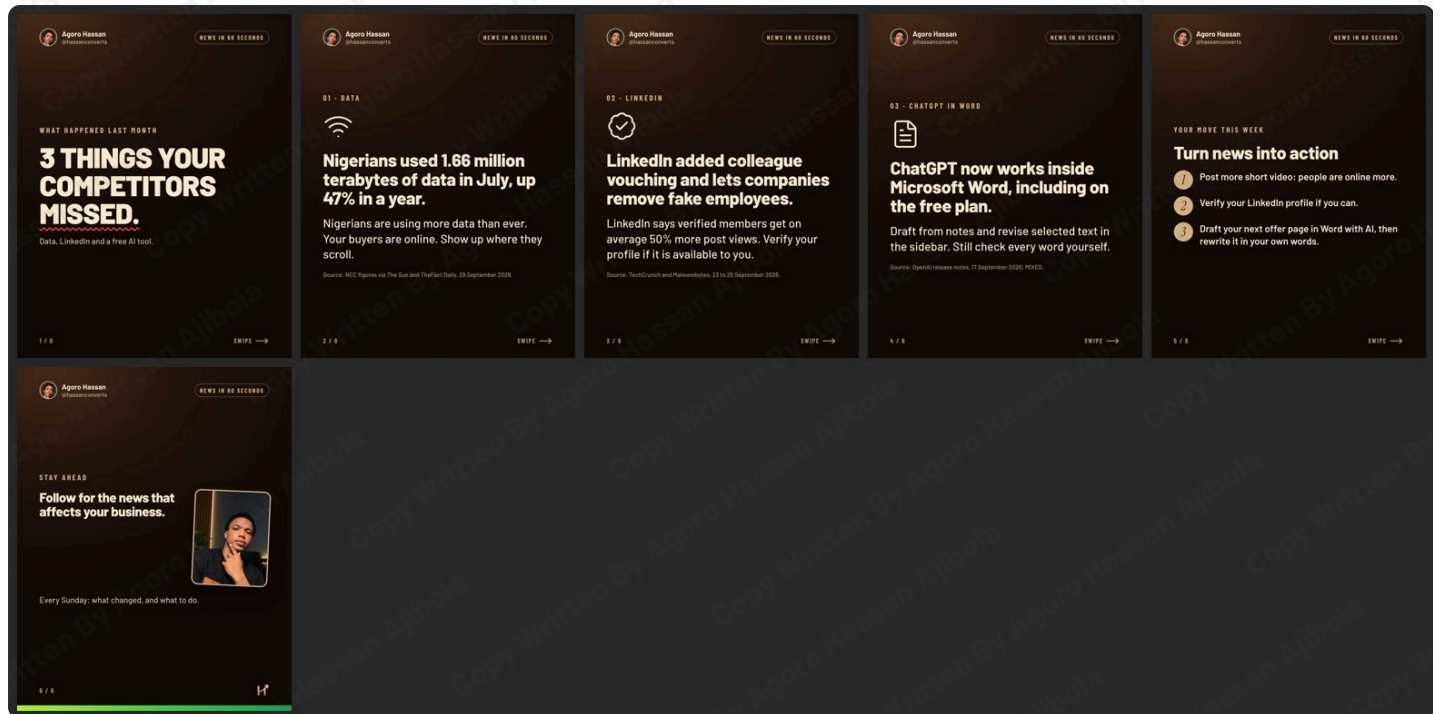

Last month, the CBN asked a question about “pay small small”.

At Nigeria Fintech Week, CBN official Abiodun Okunola said instalment plans from non banks are in effect credit: “They are offering credit... they are not licensed to offer credit. How do we regulate?” (Nairametrics, Technext)

It's a question, not a ban. No new rule or deadline. But if you sell in instalments: write your terms plainly, keep records, and watch for official guidance.

#cbn #nigeria #paymentplan #smallbusiness #businessnews

3 things your competitors missed.

INSTAGRAM AND TIKTOK CAPTION

3 things your competitors missed last month:

1. Nigerians used 1.66 million terabytes of data in July, up 47% in a year (NCC).
2. LinkedIn added colleague vouching and fake employee removal; it says verified members get 50% more post views on average (TechCrunch).
3. ChatGPT now works inside Microsoft Word, even on the free plan (OpenAI).

Watch for what to do with each this week.

#nigeria #linkedin #ai #smallbusiness #businessnews

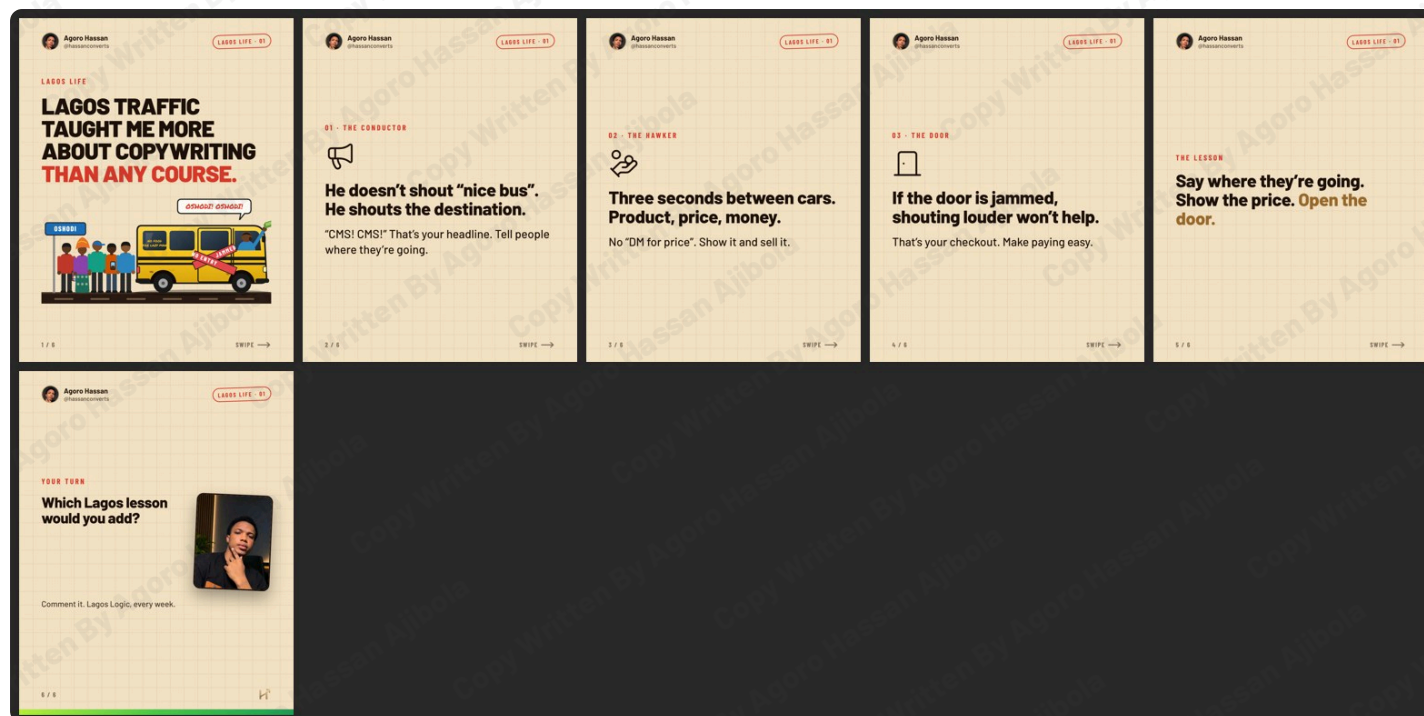

LINKEDIN CAPTION

Three things from September that most small businesses missed:

1. Nigerians used 1.66 million terabytes of data in July 2026, up 47% year on year, according to the NCC (via The Sun and TheFact Daily). Your buyers are online. Show up where they scroll.
2. LinkedIn added colleague vouching and lets company pages remove people who falsely claim to work there. LinkedIn says verified members get on average 50% more post views (TechCrunch).
3. ChatGPT now works inside Microsoft Word, including on the free plan (OpenAI release notes). Useful for first drafts; every word still needs a human check.

Have you verified your LinkedIn profile yet? (It isn't available everywhere.)

Lagos traffic taught me more about copywriting than any course.

INSTAGRAM AND TIKTOK CAPTION

Lagos traffic taught me more about copywriting than any course.

The conductor shouts the destination: that's your headline. The hawker shows the product and price in 3 seconds: no "DM for price". And a jammed door beats the loudest conductor: that's your checkout.

Say where they're going. Show the price. Open the door.

Which Lagos lesson would you add? Comment it.

#lagoslogic #copywriting #lagos #marketing #smallbusiness

Lagos traffic taught me more about copywriting than any course.

The designed version above is ready and queued. If you film this instead, post your clip at the same time with the same caption. Film on your phone, vertical, in traffic or at a bus stop. Face to camera for the first and last line; the middle can be clips of the road with your voice over. Morning or evening light, no need for a mic if the road isn't too loud.

WHAT TO SAY (ABOUT 35 SECONDS)

Lagos traffic taught me more about copywriting than any course.

Watch the conductor. He doesn't shout "nice bus". He shouts the destination: "CMS! CMS!" That's your headline. Tell people where they're going.

The hawker has three seconds between cars. He shows the product, says the price, collects the money. No "DM for price".

And if the bus door is jammed, it doesn't matter how loud the conductor shouts. That's your checkout.

Say where they're going. Show the price. Open the door.

Follow for more Lagos Logic.

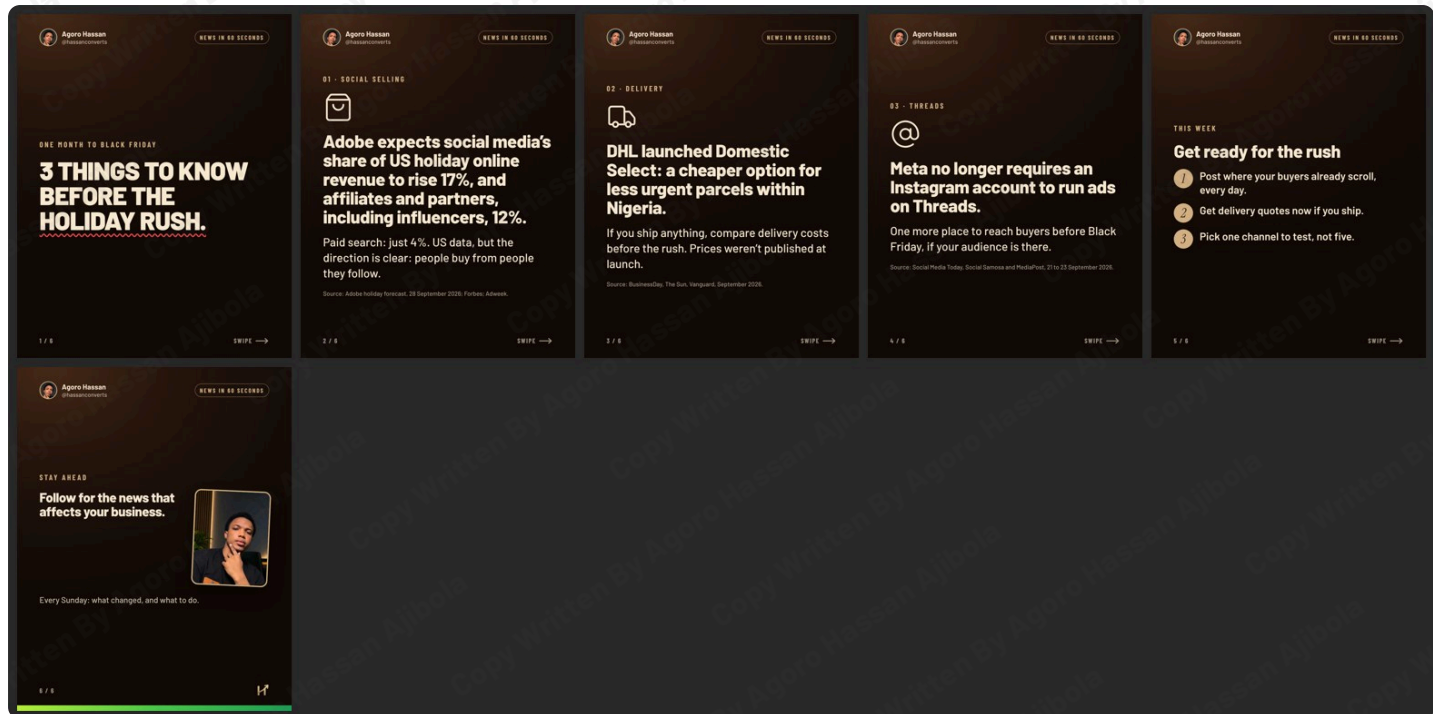

SHOTS

1. You, face to camera, by the road: the first line.
2. A danfo or conductor calling passengers (from a distance, no faces needed).
3. A hawker between cars, or goods on a tray.
4. A bus door opening, or people boarding.
5. You again, face to camera: the last two lines.

TEXT ON SCREEN

Lagos traffic taught me copywriting

3 things to know before the holiday rush.

INSTAGRAM AND TIKTOK CAPTION

3 things to know before the holiday rush:

1. Adobe expects social media's share of US holiday online revenue to rise 17%, affiliates and partners (including influencers) 12%, paid search just 4% (Adobe forecast).
2. DHL launched Domestic Select, a cheaper option for less urgent parcels within Nigeria (BusinessDay, The Sun).
3. Meta no longer requires an Instagram account to run Threads ads (Social Media Today).

People buy from people they follow. Show up daily where your buyers scroll.

#blackfriday #socialcommerce #nigeria #smallbusiness #businessnews